OVERVIEW

When you need rock-star talent deeply integrated into your organization, we'll find and deliver Concrete-caliber people to work side-by-side with your team.

We've built a local and global network of people we've carefully selected for their hard-to-find UX skillsets. We can help you find industry-specific experience whether it's B2B, B2C, or developer related. Let us help you find the right match and skillset for your needs.

UX Researcher

Customers often have the answers you need. UX Researchers probe with a variety of UX research methods such as primary and secondary research, quantitative and qualitative studies, market and ethnographic research, and usability testing. Our researchers deliver insights actionable by product and design teams.

UX Designer/Interaction Designer

An Interaction Designer creates meaningful relationships between people and the products and services they use. This means simplified and intuitive experiences needing as little information as possible. An interaction designer will drive your product design with user flows, personas, user journeys, storyboards, wireframes, and low- to high-fidelity prototypes.

Visual Designer

Today's multi-platform experiences require visual designs that are natural for each one. A skilled visual designer creates concepts, mood boards, and layouts based on research and UX artifacts. They'll work within your brand guidelines to make sure logos, icons, infographics, and design systems reflect your hard-earned identity.
